Founders Day 2022, which took place on May 10, is an annual celebration of student entrepreneurship presented by the Carlson School of Management. Students presented their work to an enthusiastic crowd at the Toaster Innovation Hub in Walter Library. The Toaster is a student-centered collaborative space developed by the Libraries in partnership with The Holmes Center for Entrepreneurship in the Carlson School. John Stavig, Program Director for the Holmes Center, is pictured left.

Letter from the Dean

Dear friends,

We have experienced another exciting, evolving year at the University of Minnesota Libraries, with advances that included our students, faculty, staff, and the wider community whom we support.

In this Impact Report, among other facts, you'll see that:

• the Toaster continues to be a hot spot for students to gather;

• online tutorials created by our librarians open up the world of research for thousands; and

• students have been 100% satisfied with the tutoring they received from Peer Research Consultants.

Website searches numbering 1.7 million translate to a lot of information found, shared, and, we believe, incorporated into research projects. The nearly 1 million visits to the Libraries on the U of M’s Twin Cities campus add up to a substantial amount of study time — and, we hope, student success!

In the last few years, Zoom has changed the way we meet. But just as the invention of radio didn’t entirely erase live musical performances, online meetings have not replaced the power of seeing each other in Real Life.

For example, I am so pleased that in 2022 we were able to reinstate our Minnesota Institute for Early-Career Librarians with an in-person format! One of our instructors, Ione Damasco, commented: “Being in person really allowed them to be their whole selves in that space and really focus on what was happening in the classroom.”

There’s more to tell: Thank you for reading our University of Minnesota Libraries Impact Report and sharing it with other friends and supporters.

Sincerely,

Lisa German

THE TOASTER COMMUNITY HEATS UP!
With students making their way back to campus, the Toaster experienced an almost 900% increase in community members in FY22 — reaching more than 2,100 students, up from only 239 in FY 2021.

Demonstrating that the Toaster is a student-centered space, 41% of the 135 events, workshops, or student meetings held in the Toaster were facilitated by student leadership and student organizations.

In addition to student empowerment, the Toaster’s dedication to promoting multi-disciplinary collaboration is illustrated by the community demographics: The Toaster draws students from high school (PSEO) to graduate programs and from 19 different U of M colleges.

The Toaster is a collaboration between the Libraries and the Carlson School of Management’s Holmes Center for Entrepreneurship.

In FY22, the Toaster experienced an almost 900% increase in community members.

PEER RESEARCH CONSULTANTS
Our Peer Research Consultants (PRCs) are students trained to help other students with research papers and assignments — while also guiding interested students to faculty so they can work on impactful research projects.

IN FY22, PRCS PROVIDED:

- 313 one-on-one research consultations across 67 different courses
- Helped 26 students with online requests following workshops
- Presented to 130 students at the BIOL 1806 Undergrad Research Info Session.

QUOTES FROM STUDENTS:

“This was my first time meeting with a Peer Research Consultant. It was definitely positive. I feel like it helped a lot.”

“I’m very excited about my research topic and its many aspects to explore. [But] I reached a point of [being] overwhelmed. ... Just a few helpful tips [from my Peer Research Consultant] on how to narrow my topic was all I needed to bounce back and move forward with my research project.”
Student Success

INSTRUCTIONS, LIBRARY GUIDES, AND ONLINE TUTORIALS

Library staff provided instruction in more than 700 classes, reaching a total of 15,550 students.

Our WRIT 1301 partnership reached about 4,500 students in FY22, helping first-year students hone their writing skills and develop critical thinking skills.

Librarians and staff offered 159 workshops to 2,768 participants.

QUOTES FROM INSTRUCTORS:

“It is so valuable for students to get to know the resources around them at the UMN. And your working directly with us not only brings the libraries closer to the students, but you also provide them valuable feedback. I appreciate the time and expertise that you share with our students!”

“It’s so nice to get another perspective on a text and to have someone else’s voices be present in the class, clarifying and deepening students’ understandings of key concepts — like authority vs. credibility — and helping them to think about how they might evaluate and use texts.”

QUOTES FROM STUDENTS:

“I have wanted to use library resources more. Everything in this workshop is very useful for me.”

“Hands down, my biggest improvement was learning how to find peer-reviewed sources, and which websites to use in order to do so. The University librarian that we worked with taught me how to use keywords in my searches, and being able to find such amazing sources is a skill that I will definitely continue to use for the rest of my college career, and probably for the rest of my life.”
The Student Advisory Board was launched in FY22. Made up of 10 students from across the University, they provided key feedback on course readings and textbooks, library hours, and using the Libraries website for research — and more. They also hosted study breaks, did social media takeovers, and walked with the Libraries in the Homecoming Parade.

STUDENT SAVINGS

Library course materials were embedded in 1,917 courses (or 3,272 sections) at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities.

More than 54,617 items* reached 90,917 students.

If every student took advantage of these resources, the potential savings would have been $7.7 million in FY22.

The Libraries saved students in Prof. Hallsby’s class $12,000.

TEXT AND DATA MINING

Text and data mining methods and tools enable researchers to study and analyze large amounts of content and data (from news and social media, for instance) — but requires advanced programming skills and new ways to access content. That is where Librarian Cody Hennesy and Michael Beckstrand of LATIS (Liberal Arts Technologies and Information Services) can help.

HAPPY 15TH ANNIVERSARY TO THE UNIVERSITY DIGITAL CONSERVANCY!

The University Digital Conservancy (UDC) celebrated its 15th anniversary in 2022!

The UDC holds more than 100,000 articles, University documents, dissertations, datasets, and more — recently adding 11,000 issues of the Minnesota Daily. It provides free, public access and long-term preservation to work created across the U of M system.

The Data Repository for the University of Minnesota (DRUM) is a program of the UDC and is the place for U of M faculty, staff, and students to share, publish, and preserve their digital research data for long-term access and future use.

DURING FY22:

- 7,244 new records added
- 4,426,950 total items downloaded from UDC

OVER 15 YEARS:

- 100,000+ records in UDC, including 13,000 theses and dissertations, 760 datasets, 9,000 Extension publications, and 16,000 University publications and reports
- 35+ million total downloads.
DATA CURATION NETWORK
Since its founding by the University of Minnesota Libraries and partners in 2018, the Data Curation Network (DCN) has grown to 17 members. The Network has collectively curated more than 300 datasets through a shared curation workflow.

In the past year and in the coming year, the DCN has been involved in two collaborative research projects, is actively preparing for and supporting researchers in advance of the upcoming NIH Data Sharing requirements, and is hosting a learning series to support researchers, program officers, and librarians.

Collections
In June 2022, the University of Minnesota Board of Regents approved funding for an Off-site Collections Facility — a project long sought by the Libraries to ensure preservation of collections well into the future.

“Having a new facility is critical for us to ensure that we properly preserve the University’s most valued and unique assets, while having space to plan for the future.”

LISA GERMAN, UNIVERSITY LIBRARIAN AND DEAN OF LIBRARIES.
A DATABASE’S IMPACT

About 120,000 pages of material from the Libraries’ Immigration History Research Center Archives were downloaded in FY22 through Migration to New Worlds II, a resource for undergraduate research and teaching. Migration to New Worlds II, an Adam Matthew Digital product, includes more than 70,000 pages and audio recordings from the Libraries’ Immigration History Research Center Archives, and hundreds of thousands of digitized materials from other collections, including material from the National Archives (UK) and the Tenement Museum, New York.

HISTORY DAY

During the COVID-19 pandemic, online access for schools in Minnesota was granted as part of the University’s National History Day support.

“It really helped rural students have equitable access to high-quality research materials.”

“One of our kids is at National History Day!! (Virtually, of course) thanks to the [Adam Matthew Digital] database! So thank you!”

“Having digital access to resources [of the] university libraries ... is absolutely critical.”

INTERLIBRARY LOAN AND DIGITAL DELIVERY

“Without you and ILL, I wouldn’t get anything done. You are my scholarly lifeline!”

“Thank you so much! You continue to be one of the very best components of researching at U of M! I’m so grateful for the ILL services!”

“What a superb service! Thank you to everyone making this possible: apart from COVID’s effect on getting around comfortably, there are other life/work schedules that make it hard to even attend a library more than infrequently.”

MAPPING PREJUDICE

Mapping Prejudice resumed working with community-based volunteers scanning deeds for racial covenants, offered 25 public presentations, and added a role as an official observer for a Uniform Law Commission process to create model legislation related to discharge or removal of historical racial covenants.

INCLUSION, DIVERSITY, EQUITY, AND ACCESSIBILITY (IDEA)

Many individual staff, committees, and departments engaged in IDEA initiatives at various levels throughout the year. A few highlights include:

- A new all-gender restroom was built and opened on the ground floor of Elmer L. Andersen Library;
- The Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Leadership Committee worked with an outside consultant to conduct an IDEA climate assessment survey for Libraries staff, the results of which have been shared, discussed, and acted upon at many levels;
- The Libraries co-sponsored a system-wide Global Accessibility Awareness Day;
- The Libraries Accessibility Steering Committee released additional role-based training pathways to support digital accessibility education; and,
- A staff Anti-racism Community of Practice continues to meet monthly.

LITTLE FREE LIBRARIES

The U of M Libraries collaborated with Goldy Gopher (and other units on campus and off) to create four Little Free Libraries. Patrons may take a book or leave a book, while catching a break from academic reading. Another option? Our popular reading collections in three libraries: Wilson, Walter, and Magrath.

MINITEX

Minitex is an information and resource sharing program of the Minnesota Office of Higher Education and the University of Minnesota Libraries.

IN FY22, MINITEX:

Delivered to and from Minnesota libraries and the Minitex region

716,647

items – a 25% increase over the previous year.

Facilitated the discovery of 11.3 million full-text items in eLibrary Minnesota – a 7.5% increase over last year.

Added 150 new independent book projects to its Minnesota Libraries Publishing Project, while garnering 858,656 page views – a 17% increase over FY21.
Leadership

THREE NEW AULS JOIN THE LIBRARIES

Three new Associate University Librarians started in summer 2022. Each one brings a large measure of enthusiasm to their roles. Dean Lisa German told staff: “I am so excited about our new leadership team. They are working together in ways that I had hoped — and beyond.”

Jody Gray, AUL for Research, is the only one among them who has previously worked at the U of M Libraries. She also served in diversity director roles with the American Library Association, and at the U’s College of Food, Agricultural, and Natural Resource Sciences (CFANS).

Gray is a member of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, from South Dakota. She brings that lens to her work with faculty, students, and staff involved in Libraries research.

“How can we decolonize [the research enterprise]? How do we recognize harms that exist in research practices currently and historically?” And, she adds: “How can we contribute to these conversations locally and globally?”

Evangela Q. Oates, Ph.D., AUL for Student Success, comes to Minnesota from New York. She finds parallels in their iconic rivers, the Mississippi and the Hudson, and major divides between urban and rural.

Frameworks for her approach to student success are 1) fostering a sense of belonging and 2) mattering.

“What environments does the U nurture that allows racially minoritized students to see their value and contributions as beneficial to their personal development, their communities, and the U?”

Oates also would like to see more connections between students, particularly Black, indigenous, and students of color, and their communities in the Twin Cities. The U and its Libraries collaborating in new ways with community colleges also may help students navigate higher education.

L. Angie Ohler, AUL for Collections and Content Strategy, appreciates the U of M Libraries long, strong history of partnerships, such as the Big Ten Academic Alliance. “Where you have strong partnerships between libraries, you have opportunities to change the landscape for the better,” Ohler says.

She is glad to be here as part of a new team, under Dean Lisa German. “Sometimes the impetus for change can happen so much more quickly when you have people with new lenses looking at things.”

“Everything we do in collections and content strategy has an impact across the campus community and beyond. Whether we purchase scholarly resources ..., digitize existing content ..., or negotiate with publishers to ensure that University of Minnesota research and publications reach a wider audience through open access: all of these have an enormous impact on the teaching, learning, and research mission of the University.”

FROM THE ARCHIVES

The James Ford Bell Library acquired a rare, 17th-century map of the Java Sea, thanks to generous funding from the James Ford Bell Trust.

The 1672 manuscript chart, by Dutch cartographer Johannes Blaeu, was commissioned by the Dutch East India Company to provide more accurate information of the area for its ships coming from the Indian Ocean or sailing south of the region to expand trade. “It is one of only about 356 Dutch East India Company charts that have survived out of an estimated 55,000 created between 1619 and 1799,” said Marguerite Ragnow, curator of the James Ford Bell Library.

Donor Profile

AN ACCIDENTAL CURATOR

Lisa Vecoli grew up in the Archives and returned to transform the Tretter Collection.

Lisa Vecoli used to play hide and seek in the archival stacks, where her father, Rudolph Vecoli, directed the Immigration History Research Center for 38 years. So when she joined the Advisory Board for the Tretter Collection in 2000 — and when she was hired as staff in 2012 — she felt like she was coming home.

Now Vecoli has a pronoun issue. In talking about the Tretter Collection in Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Studies at the U of M, sometimes she says “We,” and other times, she switches to “They.” Vecoli led Tretter for six years before retiring in 2018, then returned from 2021–22 to fill in until a new permanent curator was named. So her confusion is understandable.

“I ended up at the archive by accident, and it was magical. I had no training but I had passion.”

Reflections

In autumn, the trees along the Mississippi River glow with color, mirroring the Pride flag hanging beside Vecoli’s front door. Her den is lined with more than a thousand pulp paperbacks from the 1950s and 1960s featuring women loving women. They typically end with a woman marrying a man. She also owns thousands of contemporary lesbian novels, written by/for lesbians, almost all with “happy” endings. All the books will go to the Tretter Collection.

Vecoli says she was in the right place at the right time when she took the Tretter job in 2012. Although she has no formal training in being an archivist or curator, she brought her passion as a lesbian activist, her deep connections in the local community, and her understanding of the need to better organize the remarkable materials that Jean-Nickolaus Tretter had collected over the years.

What Vecoli is most proud of during her tenure is making the materials more accessible and diversifying the voices in the archive.

Vecoli also expanded holdings on lesbians, people of color, bisexual communities, voices from non-urban areas, and trans/gender queer communities. Usage is up as a result. Perhaps the highlight of Vecoli’s two stints at Tretter was her leadership in creating, developing, and managing the Tretter Transgender Oral History Project. Vecoli raised the funds for all three phases, including the upcoming Phase Three during her one year return. The Project is the largest of its kind in the world — documenting the transgender experience during a pivotal time.

Focusing on students

Even before she worked at Tretter, Vecoli and her wife, Marjean Hoeft, put the archive in their will. “There are many good causes, but this one was the perfect combination of passion and impact,” says Vecoli. “I knew the amount of money we have to give could make a real tangible difference in an organization the size of the Tretter Collection.”

Student employees will benefit from her bequest, Vecoli says. “My donation will really have an impact.” The money will hire several student employees each year. “They improve the archive and the archive changes their lives — a win/win.”

It is that “transformational impact” that the Tretter has on students that Vecoli, after she is gone, wants to support. The Tretter transformed her life, after all.
Letter from the Board Chair for the Friends of the University of Minnesota Libraries

Dear Friends and colleagues,

As I am sure that many of you can relate, the last year has been one of transitions for the Friends of the University of Minnesota Libraries. While COVID-19 still haunts us, its control over decision-making has diminished.

For the Friends, that means we started our 2021–2022 Friends Forum with a series of three virtual events during the fall and one in January, including A Feast of Words, featuring the groundbreaking work of Minnesota Transform. Our virtual events were collectively attended by more than 350 people.

In March 2022, as the weather in Minnesota turned toward spring and the snow began to melt, we transitioned back to in-person events, including our Members Appreciation Event, Giving Voice to the Past: Performing the Archive, which highlighted the depth of our Music Library, and the 13th Annual Pankake Poetry Reading, featuring the powerful and thought-provoking words of David Mura.

We also co-sponsored the Libraries’ Archie Givens Jr. NOMMO African American Speaker event that featured a conversation with Zakiya Dalila Harris, author of “The Other Black Girl,” moderated by our Friends Chair-Elect and Board Member Lissa Jones-Lofgren. Approximately 600 people attended these three in-person events, indicating a willingness to gather in person to feed one's curious mind. Please use the link below to check out videos of our previous Friends Forum events.

As chair of the Friends, I am grateful for the continued support of our Friends members. I would welcome those of you who are not Friends members to join our organization. Each event I attend allows me to learn more about the world around me, and reinforces the importance of the University Libraries to the University and the community. We cannot host these events without the support of our Friends. I am also very grateful for the tremendous individuals with whom I have the pleasure of serving on the Friends Board. Take a moment and read some of the Profiles of Friends so you can understand the reason for my gratitude.

I hope to see many of you at upcoming Friends events. Thank you for your continued support for the University of Minnesota Libraries, including making people within your social network aware of its tremendous resources and great events. In closing, I would like to share How to Amplify Black and Brown Voices In Your Community, which was developed following our Amplifying Black Narratives series offered in Fall 2021. Download the document at z.umn.edu/friends22. It's a great example of the impact that Friends events can have.

Stay well, safe, and hopeful.

Amelious N. Whyte, Jr., Ph.D.
“Giving Voice to the Past: Performing the Archive” on March 27 featured the University Singers performing music — held in the University Archives — that had been silent for over a century or, in some cases, never been performed before.
Thank you to our Friends and Supporters

Greetings!

Here at the University Libraries, we would like to extend our sincere gratitude to each donor included in this listing. Your support makes an immediate impact and helps ensure our future success. Many donors also give the invaluable gift of their time, serving on the boards and committees of our advisory groups or volunteering throughout our organization. We wish to thank every single donor and volunteer for the instrumental support.

Thank you all.
